*CHANNING WOOD WHITMAN. Born in Lancaster, Ohio, August 24, 1846. Died at Huddersfield, England, February 15, 1890, at the age of forty-three.

He was the second son of the Hon. Henry Cummings and Elizabeth (King) Whitman. His ancestry on his father's side is traced back to John Whiteman of Norfolk County, England, who was born in 1602, and who settled at Weymouth, Mass., in 1635, where he was appointed ensign by Governor Winthrop in 1645. On his mother's side the genealogy is traced to Peter Livermore of Thurloe, Suffolk County, England, whose fifth child, John, born in 1606, came to Watertown, Mass., in 1634, and married Grace Alden.

He lived in Lancaster, Ohio, until 1862, when he moved to Deerfield, Mass., remaining there six months, and thence went to Exeter Academy, remaining two years, having entered a year in advance. He was a great sufferer from weak eyes, and was in consequence delayed at times in keeping up with his class in College. He was a member of the Institute of 1770; and he occupied, during his entire college course, room 48, Gray's Hall. He was suspended at the end of the first term of the Sophomore year, and upon his return was chosen as the Class champion in chess, being told to prepare for a match at Worcester in July following. In this match with Yale, Whitman played eight games in four days, winning three, losing three, and securing two draws, the match being given up as drawn, thus leaving the championship with Harvard, by whom it was won in 1860. The next year he was chosen to represent Harvard at chess, having previously gone through an arduous training in New York, where he made even games, or beat all the players of the city. He played one hundred and twenty-five games with Captain Mackenzie, the best player in the United States, and came off victor, having the knight given, winning sixty out of one hundred, with twenty-five draws. The expected match with Yale did not come off, as upon the eve of departture for Worcester, the Yale champion was suspended, and no other player could be provided. Later, when living in Yorkshire, England, he was, in 1870, one of the representatives of the county in the chess match played between Yorkshire and Lancashire.

Whitman was over six feet in height, erect, and of large frame, a sunny temperament, a pedestrian, a good gymnast, and he pulled a strong oar, winning a single scull shell race on the Charles River, while in College.

At the time of his graduation he was confined to his college room with water on the knee. His father then conveyed him to Deerfield, Mass., and, in the autumn of 1868, he arrived home in Cincinnati. His knee improving, he went with his brother Henry, in November following, to open a branch office in St. Paul, Minn., for a Connecticut life insurance company. But his knee grew worse, and he was forced to return, in the spring of 1869, to Cincinnati, where he placed himself under medical treatment, and at the same time studied law, graduating with the degree of LL.B. from the Cincinnati Law School, in the spring of 1870. In March of that year, by the advice of surgeons, he visited Europe for relief, and was so far cured, in London, as to permit of a five weeks' Continental journey. This, however, aggravated his complaint; and he consulted the physicians at Berlin. Returning to London, he kept at rest, and by degrees recovered the use of his knee, till at last, on his second wedding trip, made in September, 1875, he indulged in mountaineering in Switzerland, even scaling the Matterhorn, without a guide, to the height of over 10,000 feet, and ascending a number of minor summits of about that altitude. The Matterhorn "is never scaled without guides, generally three in number, and a night spent out on it."

On June 24, 1870, he was appointed the Consular Representative of the United States at Huddersfield, Yorkshire, England.

In 1874, he visited the United States, spending some time in New England, in Washington, and the West.

He was married at the English Presbyterian Church, Lydgate, near Huddersfield, England, on the 19th of 1871, to Mary Wilson Eals, eldest daughter of Doctor George and Lucretia Wilson Eals, of Lithopolis, Ohio. His only child is Henry Whitman, born February 18, 1872. On that day his wife died, at Brockhouse, near Huddersfield, and is buried at Lydgate Chapel.

He was married again on the 18th of September, 1875, to Mary, daughter of William P. England, residing in Huddersfield.

In 1872, he received the degree of A. M., from Harvard.

His father, who was a Judge of the Supreme Court of Ohio, having died, Whitman came to America to settle his father's affairs, and during the return voyage toward the end of the year 1889, he contracted typhoid fever. Under careful treatment, he seemed to have recovered, but died somewhat suddenly from the effect of an exhausting complication, passing away in an unconscious state, never realizing that his life was in danger.

He leaves a wife and a son, now of age, who, from advices in 1890, was preparing for the University of Cambridge, England.

So high was Whitman's record in the Consular Bureau at Washington, that his official position as U. S. Consulate, was maintained through each succeeding administration for more than twenty years.

*ISAAC BELL, Jr. Born in New York City, November 16, 1846. Died in New York City, January 20, 1889.

He was the son of Isaac Bell, of New York, who was for many years Commissioner of Charities and Correction, and was for several years a member of the Board of Education.

Bell left College at the end of the Freshman year, and entered the banking house of Brown Bros., in New York, where he remained till 1870, when he was engaged in the cotton business in Savannah, Ga., till 1873. He then returned to New York, and opened a branch house. He became a member of the firm of Arthur Barnwell & Co., of Charleston; and then he started two houses, one in New Orleans and the other in New York, under the firm name of Isaac Bell, Jr., & Co. In 1877 he retired from business, and on September 19, 1878, he married Miss Jeannette Bennett, sister of Mr. James Gordon Bennett. The marriage ceremony was at Fairhaven, Mr. Bennett's summer house on Bellevue avenue, Newport, R. I., the Rev. Father Grace and his assistant, the Rev. Father Clinton, of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, of Newport, officiating. It was one of the most brilliant weddings ever celebrated at Newport, the French Minister and representatives of the principal foreign legations being present.

Soon after the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Bell went to Newport to live in a house at Perry street and Bellevue avenue. He took an active part in the campaign of 1884, and was President of the Democratic Club of Newport, which became a permanent organization after the election, under the name of The Isaac Bell, Jr., Democratic Club. The Democrats of Rhode Island made Bell their caucus candidate for the United States Senate in 1885, but he was defeated. He was also offered the nomination for Governor of the State, but he declined to run. On April 2d, 1885, President Cleveland appointed him Minister to the Netherlands, a position which he held until May 1, 1888. He was a delegate to the St. Louis Convention of 1888.

On November 6, 1888, he was taken ill with typhoid pneumonia in Newport. On January 5, 1889, he was brought to St. Luke's Hospital, New York, where an operation was performed, but the disease had increased beyond control, and he died January 20. He left a widow and three young children. His funeral was held in Trinity Church, New York, January 23, 1889. His burial was in the Mott family vault in Greenwood Cemetery.

NATHANIEL BRIGGS BORDEN. He is Treasurer of the Barnard Manufacturing Company, of Fall River, having held that position since its organization in 1873, and he is engaged in the manufacture of cotton cloth. Occasionally he has written for the local press. He was President of the High School Alumni Association in 1888; President of the Fall River Manufacturers Board of Trade in 1889 and 1890; President of the Common Council of Fall River, in 1890 and 1891; is President of the Children's Home Association, since 1889: Vice-President and Director of the Massasoit National Bank of Fall River; Vice-President of the Commercial Club, and of the Unitarian Club, of Fall River; Trustee of the Fall River Five Cent Savings Bank; and Director of the Troy Cooperative Bank.
